Wise Counsels Repudiated

The Eugene Review thinks slavery is not an evil, but a blessing, and wants to keep the negroes in their proper place in bondage and thus have "the Union as it was." The Review professes to believe that Washington, Jefferson and Madison were right in all things, and that their counsels should be strictly observed We, therefore, commend to its attention the following patriotic and just sentiments uttered by them, which certainly deserve as much consideration as any thing written by either in defense of State rights

WASHINGTON said in his letter to Mr Mercer, in 1786, that he never intended to buy another slave, and wished some plan could be devised for the abolition of slavery by law, and added "would to God, a like spirit might diffuse itself generally through the minds of the people of this country."

Jefferson, anticipating a conflict, arising from this cause—the very conflict which is now raging and which his prophetic mind saw in the future,—declared that if the different States were plunged into civil war by reason of slavery, "the Almighty has no attribute which can take sides with us in such a contest"

As late as 1814 we have evidence fully proving his opposition to the system In a letter written during that year, he says

> The love of justice and the love of country plead equally the cause of these people (slaves) and it is a reproach to us that they should have pleaded it so long in vain.

Nor was Madison less distinct and decided in the expression of his views. In the Virginia Constitutional Convention, he said

> We have found that this EVIL has preyed upon the very vitals of the Union and has been prejudicial to all the States in which it has existed

Such were the opinions of the great fathers. Does the Review adopt them? Will it publish them and thus show to its readers, that while it justifies slavery and desires its continuance, it repudiates the just and sagacious counsels of the men whom it declares to be "a grand galaxy of exalted minds and illustrious characters, given by God to America in those days"?

It will not be out of place for us to add here, the expressions of other eminent Southern statesmen, upon the same matter While John Randolph was a member of the House of Representatives from Virginia, he said that he neither envied the head nor the heart of any man from the North who advocated slavery in Congress. How scorching would be his invective, were he now living, against Northern men who sympathize with the South in the slaveholders' rebellion!

Henry Clay, one of the purest and noblest patriots that ever lived—whom everybody loved, and men of all parties highly honored, never hesitated to pronounce slavery a curse In one of his greatest speeches delivered in the Senate in 1850, he said

> So long as God allows the vital current to flow through my veins, I will never, never, never, by word or thought by mind or will, aid in admitting one rood of free territory to the everlasting curse of human bondage

Magnificent words, worthy of the gallant and glorious heart that prompted them! They will live forever as his proudest eulogy!

Thomas H Benton repeated them at St Louis in 1856, and wished that he had uttered them Now, when such men speak thus of slavery what must be thought of Northern men and Northern papers that justify it, and sympathize with the South in a rebellion and a war based only on a determination to give it a new lease of power?

THE TRIUMPH COMPLETE.—It is needless for us to make any comment upon the dispatch it tells its own glorious story, and the Army of the Potomac has covered itself with immortal fame!

The terrible losses sustained – forty five thousand being reported as killed wounded or missing—are perhaps not greater than in such a sharp and protracted series of battles, were to be expected The engagements have all been desperate on both sides—hand to hand conflicts—each being determined to conquer or to die in the zealous and perilous attempt to do so. The position and sufferings of this great concourse of wounded, appeal to the sympathy of the Nation more touchingly and earnestly than any words which we can write

There is good news also from the Army of the Cumberland Dalton has been captured with 4 000 rebels, and the victors have now an open road to Atlanta. In Kentucky too the spirit of lofty patriotism is kindling new zeal and activity for the salvation of the Government The summons of the Governor of that gallant State rings like a trumpet call and will, we doubt not meet a cordial and prompt response from loyal Kentuckians Truly the end seems to be at hand The dark clouds of night are passing away, and the bright morning cometh

BUTLER BESIEGING FORT DARLING

WASHINGTON, May 12th —Dispatches from the Army of the Potomac dated May 11th characterize the fighting on the 10th as the most desperate of the past seven days Gen Grant believing the enemy to have sent the greater part of his force to Richmond an advance along the entire line was ordered The 2d corps flanking the right of the line had crossed the Po the evening previous meeting with but slight resistance In the morning the position of the enemy was found to be in the shape of a horse shoe As Hancock's troops were advancing to attack the enemy they were compelled to fall back An attempt to break their center was then ordered and part of Hancock's men were sent to support Warren in this movement Our right was also advanced Its movement began in the evening, the enemy being driven into his intrenchments A brigade of the 6th corps getting into the enemy's rifle pits captured 12 guns and 1 000 prisoners, but not being supported they were unable to gain the rebel works and were forced to retreat from their advanced position, leaving the captured guns, after spiking them, and bringing off the prisoners The enemy suffered heavily from our shells falling into their works Our infantry delivered their fire with remarkable precision Our losses were heavy—Gibbon's division lost over a thousand men Robinson's division, after losing both its General officers and 2 500 men and having no General to command it has been broken up and distributed among other divisions

About noon a fire raged at a point in the line where a large number of wounded of both armies were lying, and our men while attempting to get their comrades out of danger were fired upon by the enemy and driven off, and the poor suffering wounded had to be left to perish in the flames

The Star says Burnside's colored troops were held in reserve on Tuesday for some time but were finally brought into action

It is believed in the army that Sigel having made forced marches, had destroyed Lee's railroad communications with Lynchburg, and Sheridan had done the same and cut his communications with Richmond

Orders were given to advance at 8 o'clock yesterday (11th) When our informant left the army was heavily engaged. Prominent officers say we shall soon see the end.

WASHINGTON, May 13 —Dispatches from Grant, just received, dated near Spottsylvania C H, the 12th, 6 30, P M, is as follows —Eighth days' battle closes leaving between 3,000 and 4,000 prisoners including two Generals and 30 pieces of cannon in our hands for the day's work The enemy is obstinate and seems to have found the last ditch We have lost no organization, not even a company, while we have captured and destroyed one division of Johnson's, one brigade of Dobbs and one regiment of the enemy entire.

WASHINGTON, May 13 —Dispatches from Grant to the President, which were received last night, announce in terms of characteristic modesty, that he moved on the enemy's works at Spottsylvania C H, on Thursday morning Burnside and Hancock making a grand and impetuous charge with bayonet, by corps, surprised the enemy, producing consternation in his ranks, crushing his right and center and forcing the entire line back several miles, with awful slaughter, Grant remaining master of the field, with all the rebel dead and wounded in our hands. Rout of the enemy complete

Dispatches from Stanton place the number of prisoners captured by Hancock at 2,000, including a Major General and several Brigadiers and 30 or 40 cannon

A dispatch from Grant, dated 8 o'clock, 11th, says we have ended eight days with heavy fighting The result up to this time is much in our favor Our losses are heavy, but think the enemy's much greater, We have taken 5 000 prisoners, while the enemy has taken but few except stragglers I propose to fight it out this time if it takes all the summer

Secretary Stanton sent a dispatch to Gen Dix, confirming Hancock's success of the 12th and that Butler is besieging Fort Darling

Gen Kurtz has been sent to cut the Danville railroad

BERMUDA HUNDRED, May 10 —Dispatches from Butler say that Beauregard, with 15,000 men are in Petersburg We have all the railroads leading into that city cut, and the force to keep him there

Four monitors and gunboats are within four miles of Fort Darling, ready to co operate with the land forces Our forces occupy strong position

FORTRESS MONROE, May 13.—No fighting yesterday, nor to day Our forces are throwing up intrenchments from Appomattox to Ganoville, a distance of six miles

It is stated that Beauregard was reinforced on Tuesday night by brigades from Lee

This statement seems improbable

James river was obstructed yesterday by our force near Turkey Bend by sinking schooners to prevent the rebel iron clads coming down

Our whole force moved this 5, A M, and is probably engaging the enemy by this time

CHICAGO May 12—Gen Crook left Charleston, on the Kanawha river, the 29th, with 22,000 infantry and cavalry, as a co operative force against Richmond His route is reported to be via Lewisburg towards Staunton or Lynchburg

WASHINGTON, May 13 —The Star says that an officer who arrived to day reports that at 8 o'clock P M, yesterday a dispatch was received at the front from Sigel's command dated at Butler's mountain, between Charlottesville and Lynchburg 10 o'clock A M announcing that his cavalry had torn up the railroad between those two places for 26 miles below the former place, and that the track of the Gordonsville road between Charlottesville and Keswick was destroyed All the bridges on both roads between those points have been destroyed In the evening our forces encountered a body of cavalry a skirmish ensued which ended in the repulse of the rebels

WASHINGTON, May 13 —A boat which left Belle Plain at 10 o'clock this morning brings intelligence of the result of yesterday's battle Lee was driven out of his intrenchments to Po river four miles during the night A greater portion of our army crossed that stream and the glorious victory this morning was thus rendered decisive and brilliant

Advices from Sheridan show that he had a great success Both the Fredericksburg and Richmond and the Virginia Central Railroads [illegible] cut [illegible] for miles Sigel's cavalry moving down the Shenandoah valley upon the Virginia Central Railroad near Charlottesville

The Secretary of War's dispatch yesterday says The Government [illegible] support Gen Grant The seven [illegible] the [illegible] reinforcements [illegible] They have been rapidly sent forward [illegible] men left the city on Thursday It is stated [illegible] the Army of the Potomac with 15 000 [illegible] In every probability our [illegible] have been greatly exaggerated and the report of [illegible] 000 men referred to almost [illegible] one losses [illegible] will be as strong as when it set out on the campaign

WASHINGTON, May 14.—A dispatch received at midnight from a command of prisoners at Belle Plain, announces the arrival there of over 1000 prisoners including 500 officers

CAIRO, May 13 —Two more gunboats fell into the hands of the enemy, but the reports need confirmation

ST LOUIS May 14 —Porter's [illegible] at Alexandria with [illegible] iron clads A large force is engaged in the river [illegible] a greater depth at the falls for gunboats to pass over It would take two weeks for the water to raise The Union lines embrace a circuit of 3 miles

McClernand's corps at New Orleans is to reinforce Banks

Magruder with 2100 men is reported to have joined Kirby Smith

Price is said to have 31 000 men at work on the fortifications below Shreveport.

NEW YORK, May 14.—A special dispatch says—[illegible] dated Headquarters Army of the [illegible] Thursday night, says The rebels are in full retreat to the North Anna with fresh [illegible] Lee's retreat [illegible] thousands of prisoners are being captured The streams in the rear are very much swollen by the recent rains Supplies are reaching the army [illegible] The wounded are coming in [illegible] immediately sent to Washington, many of them [illegible] at Fredericksburg. The rebels are evidently after our trains We have lost nothing except [illegible] ambulances captured [illegible] Our [illegible] killed wounded and missing is estimated at 45 000

The Herald's special dispatch dated 13th, says Near dark, our sentinels [illegible] first line occupied Spottsylvania This morning our pickets sent word that Lee had fallen back on the roads running to the [illegible] Po river

Dispatches from Henry's Tavern 7 o'clock, this morning said that Warren had come up in pursuit in time to capture one of Lee's pontoon trains The rebels however were on the south side of the river

Prisoners state positively that Lee's army is completely worn out and fearfully reduced by loss and that there is insubordination on account of the want of food

SPOTTSYLVANIA, May 13th, 8 A M —To E M Stanton —Lee abandoned his position during the night Whether it was to occupy a new position in the same vicinity, or to make good his retreat it is not yet determined One division of Wright's corps and one of Hancock's are now engaged in settling this question At 7 A M they had come upon his rear guard and although our gallant army was greatly fatigued from the enemy's efforts yesterday the news of Lee's departure inspires our men with fresh energy Our whole force will soon be in action but the heavy rains during the last 6 hours render the roads exceedingly difficult for artillery and wagons to pass along The number that are severely wounded is greater than in any previous days fighting This is owing to the great use of artillery

(Signed) DANA,
Assistant Secretary of War

WASHINGTON May 14 —A careful investigation fixes the total loss of the Army of the Potomac killed wounded and missing up to the commencement of the battle of the 12th, at 30 000

The Star says from the fact that no cannonading was heard yesterday from the front it is believed that Lee is shifting his position, and taking care to put himself out of fighting range.

The public may expect to hear soon of the next fight unless Lee has been so weakened as to compel him to seek cover in the Richmond fortifications or retreat repeatedly in the direction of Lynchburg or Staunton from which place his army has received supplies since Grant crossed the Rapidan

Despatches from the headquarters of the Army of the Potomac have been received which says we have achieved the greatest victory of the war after the severest fighting ever recorded in history. The battle was acknowledged to be the heaviest of all, lasting from day break until after dark, being renewed at 9 o'clock and continuing until near 3, A M Both parties contended during the night for the possession of the line of rifle pits from which our men had driven the enemy in the morning The field presents to day a scene beyond description In the breastworks men were dying in some places in piles of three and four deep The enemy removed a large number of dead and wounded during Thursday from portions of the field, but there were many places they could not reach, where they lay as thick as our own The number of guns captured is 39 Many colors were also taken

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF POTOMAC, May 13 —2 P M —The enemy are found to have fallen back to their new line, abandoning their works on our right.

They are apparently getting into a position for another contest.

Col Carroll's brigade brought in a number of prisoners and a stand of colors this morning.

CHICAGO, May 14 —The following additional news regarding the battle on Thursday, has been received

The battle continued until dark on our left, centre and right. We had gained a mile and a half of ground in advance of that occupied the night before Our right did not advance it being Grant's intention to hold the enemy in front of that part of our line in order to enable us to make a movement around the rebel left The enemy kept up demonstrations along his whole front during the night The purpose of this was ascertained on Friday morning the 13th, by discovering that Lee's main forces had fallen back some distance The dispatches all agree as to the result being a decisive victory

Dispatches dated 9 A M, of the 13th, say that General Warren advanced and heavy skirmishing ensued for four miles with the rear guard of Lee's army, which was across the river. This retreat shows that Lee was not able to risk another fight to day As to where he will make another stand, no one can form an opinion

FRANKFORT, Ky, May 13 —Kentuckians to the rescue! I want ten thousand six months' men, at once Don't hesitate I come to lead you. Let us help to finish the war and save the Government

[Signed] THOMAS BRAMLETTE,
Governor of Kentucky.

PHILADELPHIA, May 14 —A special dated Cincinnati, May 13th, states that news has been received there from soldiers that Schofield's army moved from Bull's Gap on the 2d of May After four hours' fighting on the 4th the rebels retreated to avoid our troops, who are pursuing them into North Carolina

The intelligence that General Thomas had taken Dalton, Ga is confirmed He captured 4,000 prisoners and 10 pieces of artillery

CINCINNATI May 14 —Dalton, Georgia was evacuated on Thursday night, May 12th, and is now occupied by our forces

Additional Eastern News.

WASHINGTON, May 8th —At last dates General Banks was at Alexandria Intimation having been given that he designed to leave that position positive orders from Gen Grant have been issued requiring him to afford protection to the gunboats His forces are strong enough under competent command, to bid defiance to any force which the rebels can bring against him. Arrangements for supplies will be made with energy and celerity, by General Canby, who has gone forward with special instructions

NEW YORK, May 8th —The Times' correspondent writing from James river, May 5th, and speaking of Gen Butler's movement says "The project, in which the Lieutenant General, after careful examination fully acquiesced, was to advance upon Richmond by the James river getting a foothold as near the city as possible, on the south bank of the stream interrupting the communications of the rebel Capital southward and thus eventually compelling the evacuation by Lee's army of their strongly fortified position on the Rapidan and forcing the rebels to give Gen Grant battle, or to remove rearward toward their Capital The first step toward organization was made some weeks since by the concentration at Yorktown, from various posts in North Carolina and Virginia, of the great bulk of the Eighth Corps with nearly all the Tenth Army Corps under Gen Gilmore which were sent to General Butler to participate in the movement That Yorktown and Gloucester Point both at the mouth of York river should have been selected for the rendezvous of these troops, naturally led to the supposition that the advance was to be made up the Peninsula

That the deception might be doubly sure a brigade of Union troops was dispatched by Gen Butler as late as yesterday to White House Landing, on the Pamunkey where, at sunset they were sedulously engaged in felling trees and constructing a military wharf as if preparing to facilitate the landing of a large army All light draft steamers were until the last moment kept at Fortress Monroe, whence early yesterday morning they were dispatched to York [illegible] and commenced embarking the troops whose arrangements had been previously made General Butler's orders to subordinates required them to repair to Hampton Roads as quickly as possible, where they anchored for the night At daybreak the advance of the troops moved up the James convoyed by the army gunboats under General Graham and five Monitors and eleven gunboats under Rear Admiral Lee. The cavalry branch of the expedition was commanded by Brigadier General Kurtz who with several thousand white troops left Suffolk [illegible] also at [illegible] yesterday morning The point at which he aims primarily is Hicksford on the Petersburg Richmond and Weldon road

General Kurtz received a roving commission and may penetrate as far as Weldon before starting up the Peninsula Another cavalry force set out at the same time with the object of creating a diversion in our favor by keeping the rebels excited and attacking their outposts This expedition will try to cross the Chickahominy at Bottom's Bridge and make its way to the main body on James river.

General [illegible] has taken [illegible] of Wilson's wharf and Fort Powhatan, [illegible] between the two points is [illegible] City Point [illegible] The Union forces are securely planted [illegible] advantageous positions within 15 miles of the rebel Capital Before night fall the greater part of the [illegible] will be disembarked Our line will stretch across [illegible] the left resting on the James river then passing over the Appomattox at Port Walthall [illegible] Bermuda Hundred

[illegible] here with both flanks protected by the gunboats [illegible] The position [illegible] admirable for seriously threatening Richmond [illegible] army is now between two fires and [illegible] impair his communications southward [illegible] will be added to his other troubles

AN ENGLISH CUSTOM.—The Washington correspondent of the Stockton Independent writes as follows

The Senate bill to authorize the heads of the Departments (the Cabinet) to take seats on the floor of either House and to participate in the debates on all measures pertaining to their several departments that may be presented has been favorably reported [illegible] this session This is one of the [illegible] measures that has [illegible] in immediate contact with the [illegible] making [illegible] but not allowing them to vote on the question [illegible] They [illegible] the [illegible] views [illegible] measures that may be recommended by them and answer such questions as will give the people intelligent views of the policy proposed by them This is quite [illegible] the existing [illegible] much to the procedures in the British Houses of Parliament, and the French Chamber of Deputies

THE [illegible] MAIL.—The reports from [illegible] have been exceedingly trying to the [illegible] For 17 days the storm is said to have raged fearfully The quadrupeds, with the best of precaution and good driving, would at times get beyond their depth in the snow, and flounder [illegible] in their own tracks, till assisted out again by the passengers With a continuation of the present drying weather, the roads will soon be made good again and schedule time made by the stages —Deseret News April 27th

Hall's Balsam for the Lungs from the recommendation of others He gave [illegible] to his child [illegible] months old, also used it in his family, generally for coughs and colds and in every instance found immediate relief, and that he would not be without it Mr J.B. Miller states that he used Dr Wm. Hall's Balsam for the Lungs with great benefit [illegible] was entirely relieved of a severe cough [illegible] bleeding at the Lungs to whom he [illegible] one bottle and it entirely cured him Mr John Davis was cured of a severe cough and also gave it to his infant child for whooping cough, and says it is the best medicine of medicines Mr. James N Harden [illegible] wished it proclaimed everywhere that his daughter aged sixteen years, was severely afflicted with cough and bleeding at the Lungs for seven months She was cured sound and well by using part of one bottle of Dr. Wm Hall's Balsam for the Lungs Mr Wm Harden testifies that his wife was greatly afflicted with [illegible] suffering much with pain in her breast and side; also her little daughter aged two years had so greatly suffered with phthisic that her life was despaired of Both mother and daughter found immediate relief in using Dr Wm. Hall's Balsam for the Lungs. The above are a few of the many testimonials I have received in favor of very great Lung Remedy and if you desire, I can send many more which have come to my knowledge Respectfully yours I D SMITH, Richmond Ky July 1 1856 Sold by REDINGTON & CO, 416 and 418 Front street, San Francisco who are also agents for the Pacific Coast for the sale of Scovill's Blood and Liver Syrup, and we would direct the attention of those who suffer from scrofula eruptions or any other impurity of the blood to Scovill's Blood and Liver Syrup. as it will cleanse the blood and permanently eradicate from the system the cause of the disease, thereby restoring health and vivacity to the system Scovill's Blood and Liver Syrup is compounded upon scientific principles and with great care We do not pretend it will cure all nor that in all cases, and under all circumstances, it is absolutely infallible Common sense teaches us that the day of Miracles has passed, but science and facts remain and on the strength of these we call attention to Scovill's Blood and Liver Syrup The noble science of medicine is controlled by the same laws which govern the entire world Were the medicine [illegible] simply to [illegible] for short time means of goitre, syphilitic or scrofulous tumors, ulceration of the bones, etc, [illegible] from it but very little good for unless persevered in the money expended for it is comparatively thrown away, nobody is benefited, the disease remains uncured, and the reputation of the medicine is injured The action of Scovill's Blood and Liver Syrup is through the secretion of the absorbent vessels, which consists in receiving or taking up certain substances known as virus or poisonous principles, and removing them from the diseased parts through the secretions and exhalents until they are carried from the system at the same time good blood is transported through the vessels to the diseased parts of the body REDINGTON & CO Agents 416 and 418 Front street, San Francisco, and sold by all Druggists my5d1m

SANITARY MEETING THIS EVENING.—We hope that all who feel an interest in the great and noble work of affording relief to the brave soldiers of our National Army will attend the meeting this evening at the Congregational Church

Rev Mr Atkinson, whose heart is warmly enlisted in the cause at the request of the Ladies' Society will deliver an address which we are sure will be full of interest, and a collection will be taken up, in aid of the purposes of the Sanitary Commission It seems to us that now especially, which we are rejoicing at the heroic work accomplished by the Army—a work which necessarily sends thousands to the hospital—we should cheerfully show our gratitude by liberal contributions for their relief and comfort Little do we know, or can we at this distance appreciate their sufferings and their sad agony, yet none can be heartless as not in some measure to realize that the men wounded while fighting for the public safety, deserve the public sympathy and generosity Let us show to-night, and from this time onward, while our heroes suffer for us, that we do not forget them, but that we are ready to make sacrifices for their relief—though even the largest that we can make will fall very far short of their unselfish and patriotic devotion

RICH ROCK.—A piece of quartz from the celebrated Rockfellow ledge, on the old emigrant road between Powder river and Burnt river, was handed to Tracy & King of this city, by Col J S Ruckle to be tested for its value in silver No gold was to be seen on it even by the aid of a glass but it seemed to contain silver sulphurets and for that it was tested The result was astonishing, instead of silver it was found to contain a fine quality of gold valued at $19 30 per ounce and to the ton $1,[illegible] 60 The company that has much of that rock have got their piles, to a dead certainty

TREASURE EXPORT.—The amount of bullion brought from the upper country last night was not enormous [illegible] to startle any one but amounted to the modest sum of about one hundred [illegible] This is a [illegible] blow about [illegible] to haul it [illegible] and then compare [illegible] Even now our merc[illegible] be bothered with any [illegible]

STILL AT W[illegible] many have had men [illegible] of First street, fro[illegible] put ting d[illegible] hauling the mains, for [illegible] nearly suburb[illegible] of wa ter [illegible] of the best quality, [illegible] collector's visits seem [illegible] frequently, most people could [illegible] house without the benefits aris[illegible] them

ANOTHER NEW STORE BUILDING.—Harker Bros are [illegible] the erection of a new three story frame building on Front st., between Morrison [illegible] It will be 100 feet deep, an[illegible] between the W[illegible] tor Hotel This ne[illegible] addition of a wharf [illegible] front, soon to be built [illegible] finish up the block to good advantage

HIGH WATER.—[illegible] has attained such a stage as to partially cover up several of the wharves, in this city and was still rising last evening It is [illegible] early for a general freshet but that is quite improbable, taking former years as a guide and the present rise is not likely to do much damage

MOVING OUT.—The occupants of the rooms corner of Front and Washington streets, were vacating the premises yesterday, preparatory to the work of demolition which is to begin on the last of this week, by the mechanics who have the contract of clearing the ground for the erection of the substantial iron front, three story brick of Mr J L Parrish

COMMENCEMENT OF A GOOD WORK.—The planking of bad places on Front street was commenced at A street yesterday, and will be followed up until the main thoroughfare is made passable We understand the property holders are to pay the expense of the work, which no doubt they are willing to do

RATHER DIMINUTIVE.—We made the cylinders of the engines for Capt Turnbull's new steamer appear altogether out of proportion, in our account on Saturday The dimensions should have been stated as being 12 inch cylinders with 4 feet stroke The "circumference" in our previous item made rather a diminutive affair of it

THE SECOND CROP.—Mr Burrell has a pear tree on his lot corner of Jefferson and Second streets, in this city, which at present shows the fruit in a very forward state, and blossoms for a second growth Such cases, we believe, are of common occurrence with that class of fruit, in Oregon

RAIN.—Who that lives in Oregon does not appreciate rain? Call us Web Feet! Call us anything But rain does refresh us! and some of these days when we have discussed a few more scientific works we will tell why it so refreshes so regenerates us We are Web Feet we are proud of it, and when the floods don't wash our houses away we are always thankful for rain, such as fell last evening

FOR VICTORIA.—Our old friend Capt. J H Couch, advertises in advance that the steamer George S. Wright S F Lewis Commander, will be dispatched as above, from Portland on or about the 23d inst The Wright has not yet arrived but unless fates intervene Captain Couch is [illegible] and it may be depended upon the steamer will sail as advertised

SANTIAM.—Capt Powell yesterday showed us a very fine specimen of the Santiam quartz The piece exhibited had been heated over a blacksmith's forge and silver globulets seemed to protrude from nearly every pore of the rock with occasionally a protuberation of gold We have no means of knowing from which ledge of the Santiam it was taken, nor its value but the richness of it is apparent

STILL AT WORK.—The water company have had men employed at a distant part of First street, from the main business of the city, putting down lead pipe, and overhauling the mains, for the accommodation of some nearly suburban residents The general flow of water through the company's pipes is of the best quality, and notwithstanding the collector's visits seem to occur rather frequently, most people could not keep house without the comforts arising from them.

ANOTHER NEW STORE BUILDING.—Harker [illegible] is are soon to commence the erection of a new three story frame building on Front st., between Morrison and Taylor. It will be 100 feet deep, and occupy the space between the What Cheer House and Monitor Hotel The new improvement, with the addition of a wharf in the rear, and on the river front, soon to be built by Mr White, will finish up this block to good advantage.

HIGH WATER.—The river has attained such a stage as to partially cover up several of the wharves, in this city, and was still rising last evening It is not too early for a general freshet, but that is quite improbable, taking former years as a guide, and the present rise is not likely to do much damage

To Canaan—A Song of the Six Hundred Thousand.

Where are you going, soldiers,
With banner, gun and sword?
We're marching South to Canaan
To battle for the Lord!
What Captain leads your armies
Along the rebel coasts?
The Mighty One of Israel,
His name is Lord of Hosts!
To Canaan, to Canaan
The Lord has led us forth,
To blow before the heathen walls
The trumpets of the North!

What flag is this you carry
Along the sea and shore?
The same our grandsires lifted up—
The same our fathers bore!
In many a battle's tempest
It shed the crimson rain—
What God hath woven in His loom
Let no man rend in twain!
To Canaan, to Canaan
The Lord has led us forth,
To plant upon the rebel towers
The banners of the North!

What troop is this that follows,
All armed with picks and spades?
These are the swarthy bondsmen—
The iron-skin brigades!
They'll pile up Freedom's breastwork,
They'll scoop out rebels' graves;
Who then will be their owner
And march them off for slaves?
To Canaan, to Canaan
The Lord has led us forth,
To strike upon the captive's chain
The hammers of the North!

What song is this you're singing?
The same that Israel sung
When Moses led the mighty choir,
And Miriam's timbrel rung!
To Canaan! To Canaan!
The Priests and maidens cried;
To Canaan! To Canaan!
The people's voice replied.
To Canaan, to Canaan
The Lord has led us forth,
To thunder through its adder dens
The anthems of the North!

When Canaan's hosts are scattered,
And all her walls lie flat,
What follows next in order?
The Lord will see to that!
We'll break the tyrant's sceptre—
We'll build the people's throne—
When half the world is Freedom's,
Then all the world's our own.
To Canaan, to Canaan
The Lord has led us forth,
To sweep the rebel threshing-floors,
A whirlwind from the North.

A Convict in Clover.

One bright May morning in the year 1818, there was held in the Place Vendome, a review of the troops in garrison at Paris. A crowd of spectators surrounded the soldiers, and gazed at the brilliant uniforms of the officers, who, as is their wont on such occasions, marched busily about without appearing to notice the admiration of the spectators. Had they only deigned to cast a pitying glance on the gaping "civilians," they must have remarked that one of their number, the lieutenant colonel of the 72d legions, was obstinately watched by a miserable tatterdemalion, who had managed to wiggle into the front ranks of the crowd. Squalid, half-starved seemingly, this pertinacious watcher might have been merely a beggar; but two minutes examination of him would have convinced Vidocq, then at the head of the French police, that he was a convict at large. In fact, Darius—so our tattered friend was called—if he were, as we might suppose from his name, a decendant of the royal house of the Archmenidæ, had indeed fallen from his high estate; he had only just left Toulon after an imprisonment of twenty years for forgery. "It can't be," said Darius, "how could he be here, and in this company? Blazing with decorations, too—I'm mistaken." Yet still he watched the brilliant soldier as he walked proudly about. "Ah!" he said presently, "I'm right after all; there's no mistaken the nervous old twitch. But what's he up to here." Darius had no difficulty in learning from the bystanders all about the lieutenant-colonel; few men were better known in Paris than the Count de Sainte Helene.

In 1818, Marshal Soult had received orders from Napoleon to march into Spain with which country France had recently became at war. Men with a knowledge of the country were wanted, and when the Count de Saint Helene offered his services they were gladly accepted, for he had served as an officer in Spain, in party warfare, and with distinction, too, for he bore the decorations of Alcantara and of St. Vladimir, conferred on him for his bravery. He had, besides, shown to Soult papers on which he established his claim to his title, and testified to his having seen service, not only in Spain, but also in America. Soult made him a major, and everywhere the respect due to their rank was paid to the count and countess—for the gallant soldier was married. He served well under Soult, and when the first restoration came, he returned to France, and obtained a private audience of Louis XVIII. The king received with every mark of respect the last of an old and noble race; listened with sympathy to his account of his family and their misfortunes; and promised his lasting favor and protection. When Napoleon returned from Elba, the King retired to Gand, and among those who were faithful or discerning enough to follow him was the indefatigable count, whose devotion to the royal cause could as yet be paid only by promises of what should be done when the tyrant was once more driven out. At the end of the hundred days the king and his followers returned to Paris, and the count rejoined his wife, whom he had left in the capital. The king did not forget his promises; it was his express desire that the count had been made lieutenant-colonel of the 72d legion. He lived with his countess in grand style, and was received into the highest society; he increased in favor with his royal master; was made a member of the legion of Honor, and at the time of our story it was asserted that he was about to be named aid-de-camp to the Duke of Angouleme, the King's nephew.

This was what Darius might have learned, had he had leisure to make full inquiry; but keeping his eye constantly on the officer, he lost not a moment in following him on his return home at the end of the review. But the convict was not satisfied with merely learning the address of the officer; following him closely, he entered the house almost at the same time with him. "Do you recognise me?" said he, as he stood face to face with the count in his drawing room. Recognise him! And the question asked, too, in a way that implied long familiarity! No wonder that the count replied by a counter-question, scarcely polite, indeed: "Who's this fellow?" "I'm Darius," said the convict; "and we were in the same chain at Toulon. Do you know me now?" "The Count de Sainte Helene has nothing to say to a scoundrel like you; get out of this directly, or I tell my footman to turn you out." "You're the scoundrel," says Darius. "Count, indeed! you're no more count than I am. You're Peter Coignard—d'ye hear? Peter Coignard, I say, who got fourteen years for housebreaking!" Without further noticing Darius, the count rang a bell. "Mind what you're at," said Darius. "I don't want to hurt you, and I would n't have split. I'm hard up, and I want a little help—that's all; but if you turn me out you'll repent it." But a livery servant had entered, and on a sign from the count the tattered man with a royal name was bundled out of doors. Not at all disheartened with the result of his first attempt to enter polite society, Darius waits a few minutes to get himself together after his ejection, and then hastens off and seeks to see the minister of the interior, on business of the greatest importance. His reception here was more polite; the minister listened aghast to the revelations of the convict, and notwithstanding that he found, as men in office will sometimes find, that it was not in his department, he gave Darius an introduction to the governor of the military division, who in his turn heard the strange story, told with an earnestness which left no doubt of the good faith of the narrator. "What proofs have you?" at last asked the stern, upright old soldier, his face crimson with rage at the thought that a convict held high rank in his own honorable profession. "Keep me here, my general," replied Darius, "and fetch Coignard, and bring us face to face; but first of all, for heaven's sake, give me something to eat. I have n't touched a morsel to-day." While Darius was dispatching a hearty meal under lock and key, an orderly was sent to the lieutenant-colonel with an invitation to betake himself to headquarters.

"M. le Comte de Sainte-Helene," said the wrathful general, when the accused officer stood before him, still in full uniform, and displaying all his decorations, "you can no longer abuse the government and myself; I have learned who you are—Coignard an escaped convict!" Without in the least betraying himself, the count merely asked permission to return home, in order to fetch documents which would establish his identity. "One moment," said the general, and Darius was forthwith brought in. A slight embarrassment of manner betrayed the count's uneasiness at the turn things were taking, and when he began to load Darius with abuse, the general became convinced that the convict was right. Cutting short the warm dialogue which had begun, he ordered an officer to accompany the count to his house, and not to lose sight of him for a moment. When the house was reached the officer left his two gendarmes in the court yard, and, thrown off his guard by his prisoner, who had had time to regain all his audacity, he was imprudent enough to let him visit alone a room in which he said his papers were kept. He went out with the same footman, who a short while before had thrust out Darius; in a few minutes he had quitted the house, passing unquestioned by the gendarmes, who merely observed a man in livery leave the house. The officer, who had served in Spain, soon found a topic on which to carry on an interesting conversation with the pretty countess, in whose company he had been left; but thinking at last that it was high time the count had found his papers, he opened the door of the room into which he had gone—it was empty. "Where's your master?" he asked of the only servant he could find. "He went out an hour ago," was the answer, "and by now is far enough off." It was too true, and it was only some weeks afterwards that he was arrested in the company of some notorious scoundrels, to whom he had fled.

(To be concluded.)

PERUVIAN SYRUP,

OR PROTECTED

Solution of Protoxide of Iron,

Has been used with Great Success in Curing

DYSPEPSIA,

Affections of the Liver, Dropsy, Neuralgia, Bronchitis and Consumptive Tendencies, Disordered State of the Blood, Female Complaints, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Scurvy, the prostrating effects of Lead or Mercury,

GENERAL DEBILITY,

and all Diseases which require a

Tonic and Alterative Medicine.

THE PROOFS OF ITS EFFICACY are so numerous, so well authenticated, and of such peculiar character, that sufferers cannot reasonably hesitate to receive the proffered aid.

The class of diseases for which the Syrup provides a cure, is precisely that which has so often baffled the highest order of medical skill. The facts are tangible, the witnesses accessible, and the safety and efficacy of the Syrup incontrovertible.

From well-known Citizens of Boston.

The undersigned having experienced the beneficial effects of the "Peruvian Syrup," do not hesitate to recommend it to the attention of the public.

Rev. JOHN PIERPONT,	THOMAS C. AMORY,
THOMAS A. DEXTER,	PETER HARVEY,
S. H. KENDALL, M D,	JAMES C. DUNN,
SAMUEL MAY,	Rev. THOS. WHITTEMORE.

Certificate of Dr. Hayes.

It is well known that the medicinal effect of Protoxide of Iron is lost by even a very brief exposure to air, and that to maintain a solution of Protoxide of Iron, without further oxidation, has been deemed impossible.

In the Peruvian Syrup, this desirable point is attained by COMBINATION IN A WAY BEFORE UNKNOWN; and this solution may replace all the proto carbonates, citrates and tartrates of the Materia Medica. A. A. HAYES, M.D.,

IODINE WATER.

IODINE WATER IS THE MOST IMPORTANT DIScovery of modern chemistry, and it is impossible to over-estimate its influence as a remedial agent. Iodine has been considered the most useful article in Materia Medica, and many of the most scientific and practical chemists and physicians have investigated its effects upon the human system. It is to act upon the

HEART,
LIVER, KIDNEYS,
DIGESTIVE ORGANS AND GLANDULAR SYSTEM,

and to have great control over

SCROFULOUS AFFECTIONS.

Notwithstanding the zeal and ability which have been devoted to its investigation, it remained almost useless, until Dr Henry Anders, a physician and chemist of New York, after years of patient labor and experiment, discovered a chemical process which enabled him to dissolve

PURE IODINE IN PURE WATER.

without a solvent. This, considered impossible by the scientific world, is attested by certificates of analysis from Dr. J. R. Chilton of this city, and Prof. Booth, U. S. Mint, Philadelphia. The importance of this discovery was so highly appreciated by the Faculty that it was published in the Medical Journals, and its use recommended to practitioners (see "American Medical Monthly," July 6, 1856, page 76.)

This valuable medicine is now available to the public for the cure of Scrofula in all its manifold forms, Consumption, Cancer, Heart, Liver and Kidney Diseases, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Nervous Affections, Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, etc.

AS A TONIC

Its operation is evinced by strengthening the digestive organs and increased nutrition of the body is the result of the employment of Iodine. The patient recovers flesh, strength and color; hitherto pale, relaxed and feeble, he becomes full, strong and florid.

Full directions accompany each bottle.

Sold by all Druggists. Price, $1 per bottle. Prepared by Dr H. Anders & Co, Physicians and Chemists, New York.

HOSTETTER'S

CELEBRATED

STOMACH BITTERS.

THE OPERATION OF THIS PALATABLE REMEDY upon the stomach, liver and excretory organs is singularly soothing and conservative. It regulates, recruits and purifies them. Dyspepsia in all its forms yields to its control and invigorating properties.

Invigorate the System.

Vigorous digestion and pure bile produce nutricious blood, and nutritious blood a healthy frame. Does the victim of a dyspeptic stomach and a disordered liver desire to know how the digestion may be improved, the bile and other fluids of the body purified?

Dr. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters

Will accomplish this desirable revolution in the system, regulating the secretions and excretions, giving tone to the animal juices which dissolve the food, strengthen every relaxed nerve, muscle and fibre, and bring the whole machinery of vitality into vigorous and healthful play.

Strengthen the System.

The best means of imparting vigor to the broken-down frame and shattered constitution, which has yet been invented or discovered, is proffered to the feeble of both sexes and all ages in

Dr. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters,

Debility, from whatever cause arising, may be cured; strength, in whatever manner it may have been wasted, may be restored by the use of this powerful and healthy invigorant. For indigestion and all its painful effects, bodily and mental, they are a positive specific.

A word to the Aged.

In the decline of life the loss of vital force consequent upon physical decay can only be safely supplied by some vivifying preparation which recruits the strength and spirits, without entailing the exhaustion which is always the final effect of ordinary stimulants. We tender to the aged

Dr. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters,

As an invigorant and restorative, immediate in its beneficial action and permanent in its effects. It tones the stomach, improves the appetite, and acts like a charm upon the spirits.

For Females.

Thousands of ladies resort to it as a remedy for hysteria, fluttering of the heart, nervous headache, vertigo, general debility, and all peculiar disturbances and derangements to which, as a sex, they are subject. It cheers and enlightens the depressed mental powers, as well as strengthens the body, and its use is never followed by any reaction.

THE ASTONISHING SUCCESS WHICH HAS ATtended this invaluable medicine renders it the most valuable one ever discovered. MEDICAL WONDER

The stooping, trembling victim of depression and debility becomes a new man; he stands erect, he moves with a firm step; his mind, which was previously sunk in gloom of an almost idiotic apathy, becomes bright and active; and he goes forth regenerated, conscious of new vigor. The medicine reaches the CONSTITUTION itself, and restores it to its normal condition.
